Bridgnorth, Shropshire – 6 December 2010 – As the year draws to a close Stinkyink.com (www.stinkyink.com), the online superstore for printer cartridges, announces it has donated almost £9,000 to a mixture of local, national and international good causes.

John Sollars, MD of Stinkyink.com: “Both as an individual and as a company I firmly believe in supporting my local community, as well as donating to other charitable organisations so they can help people in need, like the World Wars’ veterans and the inhabitants of Haiti. The staff here regularly raise money for good causes and the company is happy to foster that spirit with a financial contribution.”

The donations to local charities included a commitment to three years’ support for the Alveley Cricket Club with funds for its youth coaching, while Alveley church received £3,000 for setting up a series of musical concerts, which will continue for three years as well. Other charities around Shropshire also benefited with donations amounting to several hundred pounds.

In addition Stinkyink.com contributed £4,000 to a combination of the Haiti earthquake victims and its perennial support for war veterans via the Royal British Legion Poppy Appeal.

“In 2011 Stinkyink.com will continue to support local community projects, and we are currently reviewing other organisations we want donate to,” added Sollars.
